June 2016 Newsletter

Members' profile:

At Brooklands Primary School they see themselves as a school at the heart of the community, albeit local, national or global.

They have made a conscious decision to open their doors to a rich variety of local organisations and their BizBreakfast meetings have been a good example of this new outward looking philosophy.

Since November 2015, they have welcomed the Long Eaton Civic Society, Pot Doodling, Andy Peat Design, Halchaz and Tesco Outreach alongside twenty other local groups.

BizBreakfast brings the school together with local organisations and the 7.30am start does not seem to deter willing participants.

They are looking for volunteers to take part in their Business Forum at 9.15am on Wednesday 15th June when you would be able to tell their 10 and 11 year olds about your career path and business. They can see the importance of attitude, qualifications and a great work ethic for outside speakers. If you can help please contact Phil Ball on 0115 973 2846

From September, they will have a new school uniform and you may have even noticed their new, brightly coloured signs. These are symbols of their commitment to new partnerships, specifically to be of mutual benefit to their staff, parents, governors and mostly, their pupils.

Brooklands wants them to have an all round grounding in both educational and life skills. They also want them all to enjoy their time at school and held in May a Shakespeare Week, when two professional theatre companies worked across the whole school.

Headteacher, Ceri Hathaway, is always keen to share ideas with local community members and if you'd like to pop in for coffee, attend a BizBreakfast meeting or speak at our Business Forum please give them a call.

Planning Applications business/educational related April & May 2016:

Long Eaton station ready for the summer

The Long Eaton Upholstery industry, Long Eaton Chamber of Trade and East Midlands Trains have combined to brighten up Long Eaton Railway Station for the summer. More importantly local resident, Ruth Stubbings, has volunteered to be the 'station adopter' and will help make sure the station is kept in good condition.

Long Eaton is the UK Centre for Quality Upholstery Manufacture and this is recognised by the brand logo being on display at the station. The furniture industry, in conjunction with Long Eaton Chamber of Trade, have arranged for the station to have flower displays as well as the brand logo which are all now on show.

Andrew Mitchell, representing the upholstery industry, said that many important buyers visit Long Eaton from around the world and the station gives them a first impression of the town. "We are delighted to be able to show that the town is proud of its skills and is keen to make a good impression".

Michael Lucking, Chairman of Long Eaton Chamber of Trade, said he was extremely pleased that it had been possible to bring together residents who take pride in their town with local firms and East Midlands Trains to brighten up the station. "Few people are aware that much of the finest upholstered furniture found in hotels, embassies and homes around the world is manufactured in Long Eaton", he said.

The furniture industry employs over 2,500 people in the town and sales are at least £250 million a year from furniture companies in the town.
